

Norman Tice was a charter member of the Derby Shelton Rotary club and President during 1925-1936. A native of New Haven and graduate of Yale University Class of 1918, he started and became President of the Chromium Process company in 1927. He was a resident of Derby and he died much too young of a heart attack in 1950. For years, the winner of the annual Yale-UConn football game was presented with a very large trophy named in his memory.
